

TSP, a marketing communications company, is looking for sales interns. Our goal is to determine opportunities for Fortune 500 companies to reach emerging market audiences through access to computers and mobile devices. The internship project will include use of proven methodologies as well as your proposed suggestions for new and creative solutions to maximize reach and messaging. We are looking for hard-working, self-sufficient students who are able to work a regularly scheduled week (average of 8-15 hours) from both home and our office, and we are willing to train the right candidates. This is an unpaid internship program but you may attain school credit if applicable.

To apply, please email resume to:
contact@toddstreet.com

TSP, a marketing communications company, is looking for live event production and media production interns. Our goal is to provide students with real world business experience which benefit students in their academic endeavors, career objectives and/or personal interests and goals. We want to cultivate future employees, link classroom experience to workplace experience, provide students with a resource to vet a career path, and give an opportunity for students to gain knowledge and skills. Candidates should have interest and/or experience in video pre and post production, graphic design, event management or digital media production.

We are looking for hard-working, creative and self-motivated students who are able to work a full or partially scheduled week from our office, and we are willing to train the right candidates. Good oral and written communication skills are a requirement. This is an unpaid internship program but you may attain school credit if applicable.

To apply, please email resume to:
contact@toddstreet.com